

The Analysis of the Function of the Small Boundary Markets from the Viewpoint of the Non-Agent Anti-Jet Fighter Cannon with the Emphasis of the Frontiersmen Roles (Case Study: Mahirood's Small Boundary Market of Sarbisheh from South Khorasan Province)

Alamdard, Ismail ¹

Rasti, Omran ²

Abstract

At present time most countries of the world had always been considered the non-agent anti-jet fighter cannon as one of the most effective and permanent defensive style against the civil or foreign threats. Also in Iran regarding the strategic position of the east frontier localities of the country, since a long time ago south Khorasan for reposing in the course of Silk Road in commerce and merchandize transaction and by having the most common boundary line with Afghanistan had been enjoyed proper and special importance. Among this the role of non-agent anti-jet fighter cannon and territory logistics and specially the logistics of frontier localities becomes salient. One of the proper anti-jet fighter cannon strategies in frontier localities of the province for confrontation with threats is the establishment and expansion of boundary small markets activities because this small markets has been the obvious evidence of the people's participation in economic affairs of the region which can caused the permanency of frontiersman and prevent their continuous immigration and this matter leads to the stable expansion and security of the region. This research with

1. MA in Political Geogrphy of the University of Ferdowsi Mashhad, The responsible author smaeilalamdar2007@gmail.com

2. Asistant Professor in Political Geogrphy of the University of Birjand, orasti@birjand.ac.ir descriptive-analytic method and by reliance to the library and field sources (the interviews and authors observations) has been considered the role of Mahirood's small boundary markets of Sarbisheh in undertaking the safety of the frontier localities of the province from the viewpoint of non-agent anti-jet fighter cannon. The study findings of the present research indicates that this small boundary market from the past years has been as one of the important crows of the beginning of occupation, stabilization of the frontiersmen population, decreasing of privation and the expansion of commercial relations with neighboring countries and permanently has an outstanding effect in economic activities and establishing the safety of Sarbisheh region and even all of the province.

Key Words: Non-agent Anti-Jet Fighter Cannon, South Khorasn, Mahirood's Small Boundary Market.